Management's discussion of fund performance

The fund's shares gained 23.91% on a net asset value (NAV) basis and 23.62% on a market price basis for the year ended May 31, 2026. These results compare with a 27.49% gain for the MSCI World Index. What factors influenced results

During the fund's fiscal year, global equity markets posted robust gains, overcoming volatility driven by trade tensions and the Middle East conflict. U.S. equities reached record highs, supported by surging artificial intelligence investments and strong corporate earnings. The U.S. economy remained resilient, underpinned by higher consumer spending. Inflation edged higher, largely reflecting elevated energy prices. Stocks in other regions also advanced, including strong returns in Canada, Japan and the U.K.

Within the fund, most sectors contributed to the portfolio, with information technology being particularly additive. Returns from industrials, communications services, energy and utilities were also positive. U.S.-based companies, which represent over half of the portfolio, made meaningful contribution to investment results. Holdings in South Korea and Taiwan also contributed to absolute returns.

Conversely, health care and consumer staples sectors lagged. Country-wise, holdings in Denmark, Spain and Germany saw negative returns.
