

5 things to know about International Growth and Income Fund

Investors seeking international growth can help moderate volatility by also emphasizing income-focused investments. A dividend-focused approach centered on high-quality companies could support a more balanced return profile while still seeking long-term growth outside the U.S. International Growth and Income Fund (IGI) applies this discipline by investing primarily in high-quality non-U.S. companies, with selective exposure to emerging markets and a focus on durable cash flows and consistent dividend payers.

Figures shown are past results for Class R-6 shares and are not predictive of results in future periods. Current and future results may be lower or higher than those shown. Prices and returns will vary, so investors may lose money. Investing for short periods makes losses more likely. For current information and month-end results, visit capitalgroup.com.

1 It's delivered both growth and income

- IGI seeks long-term capital growth alongside current income, investing primarily in non-U.S. companies, including those in developed and emerging markets.
- The fund focuses on established, high-quality companies with strong earnings and consistent dividends, which may help moderate volatility. The fund has a 2.13% 30-day SEC yield as of 7/31/26.
- This approach has resulted in historically higher cumulative returns than its current benchmark, MSCI All Country World Index (ACWI) ex USA, since inception.

4 Multiple sources of return

- The fund's managers capitalize on multiple sources of return by investing primarily in dividend-paying companies with attractive growth potential across regions, styles and sectors outside the U.S.
- Amid growing market concentration of stocks related to artificial intelligence (AI) and its impacts, the fund has sought durable areas of investment that may be less exposed to disruption.
- IGI has a sizable allocation to tangible assets, with a track record of investment in materials that recently surpassed the benchmark.

5 A differentiated approach

- Using a bottom-up approach, IGI's sector exposures differ from its benchmark, the MSCI ACWI ex USA Index.
- Currently, the fund emphasizes exposure to materials, consumer staples and communication services, while limiting exposure to financials, healthcare and information technology.
- This positioning aims to provide diversification from extreme market concentration while maintaining global exposure.

International Growth and Income Fund Historical Benchmarks Index returns reflect the results of the MSCI World ex USA Index through 06/30/2011 and the MSCI All Country World ex USA Index, the fund's current primary benchmark, thereafter.

MSCI World ex USA Index is a free float-adjusted market capitalization weighted index that is designed to measure equity market results of developed markets, excluding the United States. The index consists of more than 20 developed market country indexes.

MSCI All Country World Index ex USA is a free-float-adjusted market-capitalization-weighted index that is designed to measure equity market results in the global developed and emerging markets, excluding the United States.

The 30-day SEC yield reflects the rate at which the fund is earning income on its current portfolio of securities while the distribution rate reflects the fund's past dividends paid to shareholders. Accordingly, the fund's SEC yield and distribution rate may differ.

Investment results assume all distributions are reinvested and reflect applicable fees and expenses. The expense ratios are as of each fund's prospectus available at the time of publication.

Investing outside the United States involves risks, such as currency fluctuations, periods of illiquidity and price volatility. These risks may be heightened in connection with investments in developing countries.

If used after September 30, 2026, this material must be accompanied by the most recent quarterly statistical update.

Portfolios are managed, so holdings will change. Certain fixed income and/or cash and equivalents holdings may be held through mutual funds managed by the investment adviser or its affiliates that are not offered to the public.

There have been periods when the results lagged the index(es). The indexes are unmanaged and, therefore, have no expenses. Investors cannot invest directly in an index.

When applicable, results reflect fee waivers and/or expense reimbursements, without which they would have been lower. Please see capitalgroup.com for more information.

Capital Group offers some funds in a range of share classes designed to meet the needs of retirement plan sponsors and participants. The different share classes incorporate varying levels of financial professional compensation and service provider payments. Because Class R-6 shares do not include any recordkeeping payments, expenses are lower and results are higher. Other share classes that include recordkeeping costs have higher expenses and lower results than Class R-6.

Class R-6 shares were first offered on May 1, 2009. Class R-6 share results prior to the date of first sale are hypothetical based on the results of the original share class of the fund without a sales charge, adjusted for typical estimated expenses. Refer to each fund's prospectus for more information on specific expenses.
