Greg Ryan is a Senior Vice President and Investment Counselor for Capital Group Private Client Services. In that capacity, he advises wealthy individuals and the boards of foundations and endowments in developing and implementing investment strategies designed to achieve long-term investment objectives within an acceptable level of risk exposure.

Prior to joining our organization in 2001, he spent 24 years at Goldman Sachs, where he was a vice president in the firm's fixed-income and commodities division. Before that, he was a marketing representative for International Business Machines Corporation.

Greg is a Board Member of the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board in Washington, DC, on the Board of Directors of the Crescent Porter Hale Foundation, a private foundation in San Francisco, and is on the Northern California advisory Board of Jumpstart Children First.

Greg earned a BA in economics from Stanford University.

Greg is based in our San Francisco office.
